Introduction

To raise the level of professionalism, the SII has devised a unique Lunch and Learn series of lectures delivered by known experts actively working in the insurance industry. Each of these carefully devised series will provide a depth of learning and education that would assist the insurance professional in their jobs.

The Concept

A series of 10 learning sessions split into two blocks delivered by industry experts. The participant will attend each session on a monthly basis to build up the knowledge of the subject being covered. It is anticipated that following the completion of the entire series the participant will have acquired knowledge in a specific area of insurance or insurance related areas that would equip him/her to confidently address such issues

The Series

Each series will be delivered in 2 blocks of 5 sessions (10 in total) over 10 months. Each session will last 1.5 hours over lunch times in a weekday. It is encouraged that the same participant attends the entire series signed up for to benefit from the structured learning experience that is being delivered. However, if for any reason the participant cannot attend, a replacement could attend on his/ her behalf, but obviously the learning opportunity would not be as effective. Each series is limited to 20 participants per engagement ONLY.
Lunch is also provided by SII during the session.

Some of our experts:

John Goulkos, Director of DLC Piper Singapore Pte. Ltd., practises in the areas of insurance, reinsurance, alternative dispute resolution and commercial litigation

Bruce Swales, MD at Asia-Pacific for LMG Consulting Pte Ltd. Bruce was involved in several of the world's largest semiconductor industry losses, including Winbond, and Taiwan 921 earthquake catastrophe.

Our Experts

Each expert has been invited for their specialist knowledge of the subject in which they are lecturing. This has been gained through their many years of experience working in their specific areas of insurance. They have put together 10 modules to provide a unique learning course that would certainly provide a practical skill set that could assist in the participant's daily work.
