career fair 2007 By JobFactory

The GIA Career Fair participated on the 20th and 21st October 2007 at Job Central Career Fair, Suntec Convention Hall Level 4. The event was graced by Guest-Of-Honour, Dr Amy Khor Lean Suan, Mayor of South West District and Senior Parliamentary Secretary, Minister of Environment and Water Resources.

Supported by the Ministry of Home Affairs, the Job Central Career Fair featured 75 employers (exclusive of training exhibitors) offering more than 7,000 jobs in a wide range of industries including the civil service, precision engineering, hotels, tourism, banks and insurance. The event was open to the registered public and graduates.

The event's main focus was on jobs from leading companies. Job seekers came from various different backgrounds such as networking professionals who are keen to secure a job, network with industry members, or consider a new career or just keep with trends in the job market.

GIA put a strong emphasis on the general insurance industry by offering job opportunities and differentiating itself from life Insurance companies. It met its objectives by providing real employment opportunities and uplifted the industry's profile to the public. GIA seeks to network and widen job seekers' understanding of the current job opportunities in GI industry.

The main objective of the exercise was to hire independent and resourceful individuals who will contribute effectively to the general insurance industry. This high level of participation from members companies was a strong endorsement that will help change the public perspective of the industry.

At the last count, GIA received 85 recognizable applications by jobseekers who gave their resumes to the secretariat team, who in turn screened and compiling for the members companies.

The career fair provided a convenient location for employers to meet prospective job seekers and GIA believes it was a major success,
